Market Extremely Nervous and Closes Lower-Weekly Summary About Standoff

Wednesday Afterneon, Aug. 25.

Nervousness characterized the cotton market today, but it finished at moderate declines. At its lowest the loss from the opening was about 125 points, but some recurry followed when shorts ouvered. There was nothing startling in the news, but more rains fell where not needed in the eastern part of Texas, and the weekly summary contained some things which suggested the wisdom of caution after such a break as the market has bad during the past week or so. The first installment of crop condition guesses came, although one was without confirmation. The other was indentive of a crop of about 13,500,000 bales, including linters. Developments in Europe again figured and cellations were being received at the mills.

The best prices of the day were at the start, October in New York being 10 points up, at 7:40c. Some heavy rains fell over night in Southeastern Texas, while light ones were reported from other portions of the state, all of which were not favorable. The rest of the belt was in pretty goods shape, except that temperatures were rather lew in the upper part of the central and eastern belt. The weak cables encouraged selling and the condition report of 70.9, compared with last months 75.3 from this same authority also encouraged pressure. The weekly fulled to have more than temporary effect and after it came and proved no worse than expected other factors got in their work.

In the early afternoon October sold down to 25.25c, and then recovered to 37.15c, shortly before the close. But little other than the technical position seemed responsible for the come-

In the spot department business continued moderate, although Houston reported sales 8.152 bales, middling down 25 points to 29.75c. Italias reported 1.700 bales, and cut middling to 29.65c. In other markets husiness was light, Memphis selling only 200 and New Orleans 190. Adjustment of quotations to the new crop basis is nearly completed, and the few remaining markets including Memphis, are expected to do it soon. The movement continues light, both at interior points and ports and exports are practically nothing. The weekly summary said that picking was getting under way in the upper portions

New York.—Liverpool does not quite meet our advance. Market no doubt will be in an uncertain state until something definite is known of their future coal situation. Our market for the next few days will be influenced by private crop reports. The selling side should not be pressed now as cotton has had a material decline and further recovery is justified even though it proves to be temporary.—T. and M. to Clark, & Co.
